You are a very pretty woman and you look very young. If I can do something to help you, you let me know what that is. The worst I can do is say no, and there will never be any strings attached. I am an expert on getting ahead in life and I am good at many things.

just bc i sometimes make good money from sex work doesn't suddenly mean i have this magic ability to leave the sex industry, why to radfems think im only allowed to make enough for rent and a loaf a bread or else im suddenly a lying whore

Leonard Clinton Williams III ✓

@OstinatoRigore4

You deserve to have nice things in life and are only human. It is your life to live, and you are on a path that isn't sustainable and leads to far greater misery than you currently face. To get yourself out of this industry and into a good life would require years of brutal work. I suggest that you do the years of brutal work.

If you are watching porn featuring men only, that's extremely benign relative to men watching most of the porn on the internet. It's a big, big factor too, that you are a woman. You have much less an inherent tendency and capacity to objectify people.

The issue around men and pornography is a little bit of a nuanced and morally complex topic. I say a little bit, because that industry appears to be full of the same kind of exploitation that you have suffered from. There are other issues as well.

According to one Twitter/X user's criteria, I am a terf. I don't think other terfs would necessarily agree and I don't apply labels to myself. What I have to say is that I celebrate the happiness that you have found in your relationship, and I hope that it continues.

miffy, I'd be interested in your opinion on something- sex work, like the type that you do, is a terrible thing. It is a horrible fact that women like you live a life like this. These men are horrible.

On the other hand, you rely on these people for money. If they went away, you would not have money, and I presume that this would be bad news for you.

I am curious about your opinion as to what the hell we do about this? We need you and the other women out of this, but you and the other women need to have money to have food, shelter, and to fund some sort of a life.

Is it possible for you or any of the others to get out, without help from the outside world? It seems to me that a large number of the women in this industry may have no hope, unless the outside world intervenes with resources to help them.

Any input you have on any of the above, I would be very interested to hear.

It's your life to live, and it's your right to live it however you want. I believe in your ability to navigate your life. You know that terrain better than anyone. You live it 24 hours a day.

Your ex has got some insanely bad Karma floating around in the ether, and a cosmic ass whipping will inevitably come his way. The universe keeps score like that. I don't know how it does, but it does.

He owes you a million tears, and I hope the he is made to cry them all, down to the very last one.

Your new partner makes you happy. That is something to celebrate. Happiness is always something to celebrate. I hope it goes on.

@OstinatoRigore4

I just read this-

"Successful sex-workers in legal brothels make between $800 – $1800 per day."

If you make a plan to get out, you can do it, if you really make that much. You have focus issues, due to trauma, I would assume.

I have very profound focus problems, such that I cannot make a can of soup. Even still, I can work on my computer sometimes. There is something different about working on a computer vs doing anything else.

What you need is adderall. That is what helps my focus problems most of all. It would help yours too. If you've used a significant amount of methamphetamines in your life (I haven't touched it), you likely have ADHD, assuming that you didn't already have it beforehand. So you've got that to compound your focus problems. I have ADHD too.

But the point I am getting at is that you could likely do work that is entirely computer based. This is like developing software, graphic design, etc. Software pays way more, in general.

What you would want to do is live well below your means and build up some money. That's a good step to take. Then you want to set aside some time every week, as much as you can, to learn. It is something that is hard at first but becomes very immersive.

It would be a 3 year project, to get good enough to be able to make good money. It would still be a lifestyle downgrade for awhile, but nothing close to working at McDonald's. Eventually you will make more, and it is a career with longevity. Lifestyle downgrade depends on how many days you currently work. I'd say you could get a job, after 3 years of study and practice, making $70,000 in AU currency a year. $100,000 a year or more is obtainable in not many years after that, I would say.

You would also benefit from EMDR therapy, I would bet. There is a well-known one called virtualEMDR where you can do it from home.

And I'm not trying to interfere with your autonomy or to give advice. This

There are many things that can factor in to this. One is if the girl was raped or sexually abused as a child, by a close family member, say her father.

Children love their parents. The love a child has for his or her parents is extremely hard to break.

For a girl who has been raped by her father for years, loving someone who abuses and rapes you is a familiar and routine part of life.

And just typing this is causing me to feel like I want to scream in tears, out of the horror that I am describing and that is something that really exists.

As I understand it, the overwhelming majority of homosexuals are born that way. It is a combination of genetics and what happens intrauterine. The exception is sex abuse or rape survivors whose same sex activities are a reaction to trauma.

It is either acting out, as part of a trauma bond or a compulsion, or it is the person (typically a woman) directing her emotional attachment and intimacy needs at other women, who are the only people she feels safe with because of her abuse/assault.

I just cracked the case on this one. I'm about to be controversial by stating the truth. People who have XY chromosomes do not find sex work inherently damaging. It is a result of how nature engineered the small gamete producers and the large gamete producers. 1/3 blood or to check your vitals. You're not going to be allowed to have your cell phone. They may not even let you have books. The time crawls and it is relentless boredom. It is misery piled on top of misery piled on top of more misery, and it can really disrupt your life. If AU doesn't have socialized healthcare, you will have a monster sized hospital bill at the end of this.

With that said, all of the hell I've described is actually better for you than having your family and friends put you in the ground. Sometimes the hell these places put you through is more than worth it in the end. I was pretty much tortured at one of these places for 72 days when I was 18. I was much better off for it, every single day of my life, for the next 24 years and counting. There are also places that are run much better. It is possible to have a really good experience. Good experience or bad experience, it can be a major turning point in your life.

It's a better option for you, if you are distraught, to check yourself in to such a place. Tell them that you are having thoughts of self-harm and need help. They'll not keep you nearly as long as they will if law enforcement hauls you in at the direction of some medical doctor who's pumped your stomach. Work with the doctors. Assert your needs, and assert your grievances, if you have them, but let them be in charge. Do what they say when they say it. They will not just ignore your substance abuse problem, if you have one. What you want there is to get set up with outpatient treatment, vs inpatient. Outpatient lets you go home and have appointments. Inpatient means you stay there for your substance abuse treatment. If you are a trustworthy patient, it is possible that they work with you.

These hospitals, for all of their shortcomings, are **extremely** effective at saving the lives of people like you. The main reason is that this type of sudden onset extreme despair you are feeling will go away with the mere passage of time. It is very likely that within 3 days, you will no longer feel this way. If not 3 days, then 7. This type of thing never lasts long. You just need to be kept somewhere safe, so that time can pass.

@OstinatoRigore4

You have fought too hard and lived through too much, and you have so much to offer the world. Things will get better for you. I have a civil tort asset that I may be liquidating for a large sum of money in the near-term future. If I get enough, I want to help you and some of the other brothel workers I follow.

It may even be the case that you don't have to work for the brothels anymore. I may be able to fund you a life for 4 or 5 years while you go to university, and then you can get a job you love. No promises, no guarantees, and there is no telling how this turns out with me, but that's what I've thought about.

Please do not buy drugs on the internet for such a purpose. You will get horribly sick, and you will be in terrible pain. You will likely vomit uncontrollably. You may get delirious and have extremely unpleasant hallucinations. On top of all of this, you are quite likely to cause permanent brain damage and other damage to your health.

You're going to end up in a psychiatric hospital. That's what trying to off yourself gets you. If you've never been to one, trust me when I say that you don't want to go. They will keep you over your self-harm attempt. They will also urine test you, and if they find evidence of substance abuse, they'll use that as an excuse to keep you longer. You could easily end up in such a place for 14 to 90 days. They have the ability to force you to stay, and they will win if you challenge them.

You will have doctors who haphazardly give you extremely powerful medications. These medications may possibly help you, but the way that they just wing it, it is equally possible that they make you feel terrible. People come and wake you up every morning, to draw your blood or to check your vitals. You're not going to be allowed to have your cell phone. They may not even let you have books. The time crawls and it is relentless boredom. It is misery piled on top of misery piled on

Most likely there are several criminal laws that her actions are violating. I will look it up for you when I have the energy. It is no problem because I am disabled and all I'm able to do for most of the time is surf the web and type on social media.

She is likely engaging in some form of harassment and/or stalking under the law. In some jurisdictions there will be a law or laws that address patterns of conduct that cause fear. The pattern of conduct will be illegal, even if the individual acts themselves are each legal.

I will have to look up the laws in AU, but you may be able to have any weapons she has temporarily taken into the custody of the police. You can have some sort of protective or restraining order, I would imagine.

Whoever owns or manages the rental property you live in will be able to exercise real property rights over your apartment. this includes the right of exclusion. To put that in simpler terms, the owner or manager can ban her from the property. If she comes, she is breaking the law just by being there. The police will get her. The property owners won't like the idea of someone with a bat and stuff like this coming on the property, and they will probably be more than willing to do something about it.

My brain is exhausted. I'll type more later. You need to keep a detailed record of everything for the police. I would keep a paper or electronic notebook, and you want to document every event. What happened, where it happened, who was involved, and what time. Any and all evidence, save it.

Don't delete any calls, text messages, or other electronic messages she sends you. Those are evidence.

There is a browser extension called singlefile that can save html pages. If she makes threatening, abusive, or incriminating statements online, go to the web page and save an html version with singlefile. It will be a self-contained html replica of her post, comment, etc. if she deletes it later, you will have a copy. As long as you don't edit the html file, it will be admissible in court. One caveat for electronic evidence on your phone, tablet, desktop, etc. is that any defense attorney she has may be able to order a forensic examination of whatever devices you use. It's not good for privacy and they'll use any dirt they find against you.

there are multiple different laws and so my take is going to be different for those individual laws, brothels should not be allowed to take more than a certain percentage, brothel licenses need to stop being handed out to literal pedophiles.

It sounds like what you need is a system of support with everything involved in your work, instead of people who are incentivized to profit from you and to side with the buyers.

Like you know how to maximize your wellbeing, and you need people with no vested interest in the buyers to set up the environment you want.

Any and everyone, particularly brothel owners, who do not listen to you, are people who are just in your way.

The world is not a blank slate that reflects your worth as a human being back at you. It is an incredibly screwed up, dysfunctional, and even hostile place. Beautiful, intelligent women, who have character and compassion, get treated like shit 365 days a year. It's not you; it's the world.
